

GENERAL DIMOND DIES IN NEW YORK.

His Leading Career in Civil and Military Life.

SERVICE AT THE FRONT.

He Tendered a Company of Troops to President Lincoln—Ex-Superintendent of the Mint and President of the Chamber of Commerce—Funeral

Major General William Henry Dimond, division commander of the National Guard of California and one of the best known merchants of San Francisco, died at the Gilsey House, New York, June 18, at 7:30 o'clock. During his last days, while he lay unconscious, his life gradually passing away, he was attended by his son, Harry Dimond, also by business partners in New York and one of his old family physicians.

GENERAL W. H. DIMOND.

says the San Francisco Call of June 19. General Dimond had been failing in health for years, and some months ago his constitution began to weaken perceptibly. So, on the advice of his physicians, he surrendered active business employment at his office. He had two or three sinking spells of late, and the members of his family were pained by premature newspaper articles to the effect that he was dying.

William Henry Dimond was born in Honolulu, November 11, 1838, and was therefore in his 58th year. His father, a man of New England birth, went to Hawaii as a missionary. General Dimond's ancestors, dating back to his great, great grandfather, were New England people who participated in the French and Indian wars and valiantly fought in the Revolutionary war for American independence. His great-grandfather, Jesse Dimond, served in the war of 1812-15, fighting against the British.

When the great civil war of 1861 came in the United States William Henry Dimond was living in Hawaii. He espoused the cause of the Union and tendered his services to President Lincoln, offering to bring 100 men with him. At that particular time England was seeking a pretext to quarrel with the United States, so Secretary Seward advised against the acceptance of volunteers recruited on a foreign shore, and Dimond's offer was kindly declined by President Lincoln.

As the war progressed young Dimond resolved to enter the contest himself, so he traveled 7,000 miles from Honolulu to Washington and asked to be assigned to duty. He was commissioned captain and ordered for duty on the staff of Major General Rufus Saxton, then commanding the Federal forces with headquarters at Beaufort, S. C. After the surrender of Lee and Johnston Captain Dimond resigned, declining to accept a commission in the regular army.

After the war he made a tour of Europe and then resumed his business career in Honolulu. In 1867 he came to San Francisco, establishing business connections with the firm of Williams, Blanchard & Co. In 1880, on the retirement of Mr. Blanchard, the firm became Williams, Dimond & Co.

In 1880 he was appointed lieutenant colonel on the staff of Governor George C. Perkins, and on December 14, 1881, he was commissioned brigadier general, Second Brigade, N. G. C., succeeding General John McComb, who had been appointed warden of the Folsom prison. He was reappointed brigadier general by Governor Bartlett and appointed major general of the division by Governor Waterman on September 28, 1887. He was reappointed major general by Governor Markham and held that rank at the time of his death, as his resignation, tendered a short time ago, was not accepted by Governor Budd.

General Dimond was an active companion of the Loyal Legion, and was elected commander of the California Commandery of the order in 1882. He was a comrade of the Grand Army of the Republic, belonging to George H. Thomas post. He was chairman of the finance committee of the national encampment held in San Francisco, and served one campaign as chairman of the Republican State Central Committee. He served three years as Park Commissioner, resigning that position when he was appointed by President Harrison, on the recommendation of United States Senator Stanford, as superintendent of the United States mint in San Francisco. John Daggett was appointed by President Cleveland to succeed General Dimond in the mint. General Dimond's highly honorable and active career as a merchant in this city is well known. By personal attention to business affairs, by intelligent industry and strict integrity he gained the highest rank in commercial circles. He prized highly the distinction which his fellow merchants bestowed upon him when they elected him President of the Chamber of Commerce in 1894.

Ten years ago, at the Republican State convention held in Los Angeles, General Dimond was a prominent candidate for the gubernatorial nomination. He was warmly sustained by a large number of delegates, but the prize was won by John F. Swift. He was greatly disappointed in the outcome of the proceedings, but did not sulk in his tent or threaten to bolt. Two years later, in 1888, he went to the National Republican convention at Chicago as a delegate from California.

Two daughters and two sons of General Dimond reside in San Francisco and one son, William W., the eldest, lives in Honolulu. One daughter is the wife of Paul Jarboe and the other is the wife of Joseph Tobin. Edwin R. is a partner in the house of Williams, Dimond & Co. Harry Dimond is in New York.

The body of General Dimond, after the embalment, will be forwarded to San Francisco, attended by a proper escort. The car bearing the casket will leave New York today and is expected to reach San Francisco next Tuesday.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

The Drummond Castle Runs on the Rocks at Midnight.

LONDON, June 17.—A dispatch received here today reports that the British steamer Drummond Castle, which sailed from Table Bay May 28th for this port with 250 persons on board, was sunk near Ushant, the most westerly of the islands, off the coast of Brittany, France. She was damaged by collision with another steamer and sank in three minutes.

A survivor of the disaster, named Merwerk, is at Ushant, and two others at Ile de Molen. Six bodies have been recovered.

A representative of the Castle line stated that the Drummond Castle's passenger list contained 143 names, and that she carried a crew of 104 men. LONDON, June 17.—The following dispatch was received this evening by the Castle Steamship Company from the British Consul at Brest: "The Drummond Castle struck the rocks west of Ile de Molen at midnight on the 16th, and sank immediately. There was no time to take out the boats. Present information is that one person was saved at Ushant and two other survivors are at Ile de Molen. Their names are not given. A Government tug is carrying on a search."

BULUWAYO STILL IN PERIL.

A Long War Anticipated Before the Matabeles Are Put Down.

LONDON, June 19.—A dispatch from Buluwayo, the principal town of Rhodesia, which was recently besieged by Matabeles, has been received at the London office of the Chartered Fields Company stating that the position is unsatisfactory and that there is likely to be a long war before the rising of the Matabeles is put down. The dispatch adds that work in the outlying districts cannot be resumed till next year.

The Chronicle will tomorrow publish a dispatch from Buluwayo saying that he Cape mounted infantry has returned to proceed to Mashonaland and that more imperial troops have been ordered to proceed from Mafeking to operate against the Matabeles.

VALUABLE PAINTING.

An Original Correggio Placed in Royal Annex Today.

W. C. Peacock & Co. will hang in the "Royal Annex" today a large painting by Correggio, one of the celebrated old Italian masters, representing a satyr at the side of a nude woman, who is watched over by a cupid.

The artist died in 1534 and but forty original paintings, of which this is one, can be traced to him. It was the property of an English gentleman who died while Mr. Peacock was in the United States. The estate, including a valuable collection of paintings, was sold at auction. When Mr. Peacock heard of it he cabled to London to find this particular painting and purchase it at any cost. It was secured for him by an art dealer and a draft for $7,250 mailed in payment.

While there are a number of imitations of Correggio's works in Europe, the peculiar handling, the mezzo tints and foreshortening of the left arm in the female figure stamp it as an original. Mr. Peacock holds the painting at $10,000. It will be hung on the west wall and may be a vis-a-vis to one of more modern design.

What Is PURIFINE?

It is the new disinfectant which has superseded all other disinfectants, being a scientific compound, having no odor, yet possessing the qualities of a powerful disinfectant.

The automatic distributor should be placed in every house in Honolulu where odors and germs of disease exist. They are placed free of charge, taken care of and kept working day and night for $1.00 per month. It's an innovation, but on scientific principles, and appeals to everyone of common sense. The idea is this: The distributor drops two drops a minute, day and night. Foul odors are killed, yet no disagreeable smell of carbolic acid or crude disinfectants takes its place. You don't know that a powerful disinfectant is being used if you judge by the lack of odor. But it's doing the duty—doing it well. Can we show you the "Ideal Automatic Distributor?"
